

Instructor: Robert Wright (wright@higp.hawaii.edu; office: 602)
Time: Fridays 1:30-2:20 PM (with exceptions)
Place: Cyberspace
Required Tools: Lulima, Zoom (adequate webcam and microphone). Presentation software of your choice

Purpose of Class: To provide an opportunity for graduate students to give short (12 minutes) AGU-style scientific talks in a friendly environment to improve their presentation skills (oral and images). You will receive feedback from other students and the instructor. Students who have already taken EARTH 610 three or more times (during either the M.S. or Ph.D. program) may choose instead to develop presentations explaining their research to the general public. Other topics will be discussed based on instructor and student consensus. Many of you resent being made to take this class, but it nevertheless required.

For the standard science talks each student shall:

- 1) Prepare an AGU-length abstract (2000 character body + 300 character title). You shall email the abstract (as a pdf or MS Word file) to the instructor and your classmates no later than the midnight prior to your presentation.
- 2) Prepare, practice and present a 12-minute presentation, with an additional five minutes devoted to questions from the audience. You should speak on a result of your research, no matter how humble or mundane you think it might be. If you are just beginning your research you may instead talk about your research plans, presenting your proposed objectives, the methods you will use, the possible outcomes, and how you might interpret them. You are required to attend the talks of others. The instructor will provide feedback to the speaker individually. If the speaker would like to receive additional feedback from their classmates, they will be asked to specify this ahead of their presentation. This feedback will be provided directly to the speaker via email, and shall be both polite and constructive.

For the general public presentations each student shall:

- 1) Prepare a flyer for your presentation suitable to be posted publicly.
- 2) Prepare, practice and present either a) a 25-minute presentation, with an additional 3 minutes devoted to questions from the audience or, b) a narrated animation (aka video blog or vlog) presentation of similar length. Your presentation will be made/played to the class during regular Friday meetings.

Logistics : You may use whatever presentation software you want, provided it does not involve others installing software on their local machine. That is, if you can show it to others in Zoom by sharing your screen, it is okay. Speakers are responsible for making sure that their presentation is ready (and works, for example embedded video content) by conducting a dry-run prior to the class presentation.

Reading: There is no required reading. You will receive words of wisdom (?) about abstract writing and scientific talks.

Grading : Students may miss up to three Fridays with a valid excuse. If you are receiving a letter grade, you will get an "A" if you satisfy all the above requirements. For each talk that you miss in excess three, your grade will be bumped down by one letter. If you miss your own talk (without a very, very, good reason) your grade will be bumped down two letters!

Office hours: If you would like to talk, send me an email and we can arrange a time.
